

30% rebate rules and regulations

The 2009 economic stimulus act has extended a solar energy rebate of 30% for qualified US residents. This rebate is for noncommercial residents in the United States. Each manufacturer of a qualified solar product must certify that their product qualifies for this rebate. GateCrafters.com is assembling all products with those manufacturer certifications in this category on our website.

Individual states may also have additional rebates available to their residence. Additionally local governments and local energy producers may also have additional rebates. Gatecrafters.com does not collect any information regarding state and local energy credit rebates. Please see your local tax consultant for other rebates that may apply to solar energy purchases on this website.

GateCrafters.com will display a link to manufacturer's certifications for products on the individual product pages. It is recommended that all product certification are printed and retained directly from the manufacturer's website on the day of purchase.

Rebates apply to all certified products that are installed within the tax year. Please consult your accountant for complete IRS rules and regulations.
